Select and read books of your interest online, you do not have to wait for a CD to be delivered! Check and share the latest news and articles from newspapers & magazines. The PLEXTALK Linio has an internal memory where you can store books, newspapers or magazines. And no computer needed!

Your books are ready to be read online.

Many libraries serving the visually impaired have started an online book distribution service by using the DAISY Online Delivery Protocol (DODP). The DODP allows computer-free online distribution directly to a talking book player. When you call a library for books of your interest, you will have access to the books using your PLEXTALK Linio. Some libraries or organizations will regularly and automatically distribute newspapers or magazines that you subscribe to on your PLEXTALK Linio.
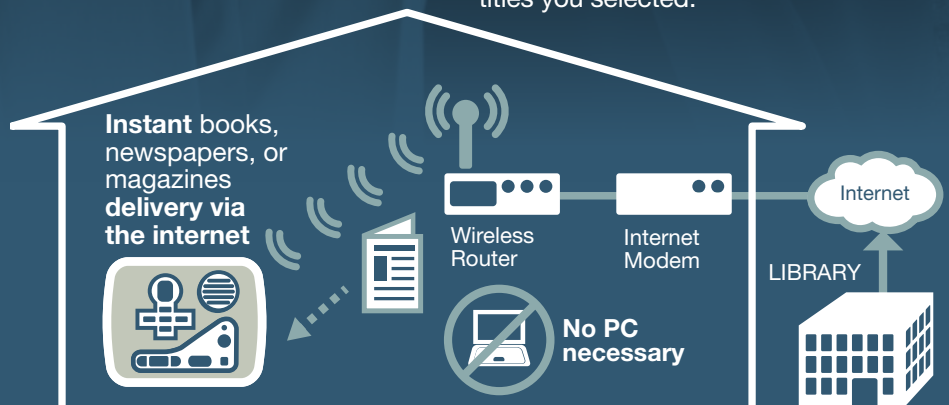

Note: Service types of online distribution vary depending on libraries. Please check with your library.

Store your books into your PLEXTALK Linio.

You can search and find books of your interest using your PLEXTALK Linio. Type the title name or the author's name on your Linio and you will get a list of the results. You can also call your library and access the list with the recent published titles you selected.
